Based in the north east of England, UK,.....Grey, Fawdon and Riddle Architects combine the experience and the vision of a group of architects who care passionately about both the product and the related services they deliver.

The client brief remains the focus point of our design approach. We believe that a clear and continuous dialogue forms the bedrock of a successful building process. This includes the communication and co-ordination with other consultants on all scales of project.

Our practice offers sound expertise in the delivery of quality designs fulfilling the demands of budget and programme. We employ the following key strategies to meet our targets:

- Innovative and practical design solutions
- Research into new construction methods
- High standards of project management
- Full information supply at all relevant stages and on time Continuous cost monitoring
- Intensive and focused design team co-ordination Latest communication and computer technology Training and motivation for all our members of staff

We are dedicated to maintaining an open approach to architecture and seek to continue to work in a variety of fields. Current projects include residential designs as well as healthcare and commercial projects.
